Note: See the Final Standings for the Fall 2020 regular season.

Note: The following steps were used after the regular season ended to break ties and determine initial seeding of teams for the RBL Playoffs:

- Step 1: Percentage of games won (the higher the percentage, the higher the seed)
- Step 2: Number of games won (the higher the number of games won, the higher the seed)
- Step 3: Head-to-head results (the winning team will be seeded higher than the losing team)
- Step 4: Head-to-head run differential (the higher the run differential, the higher the seed)
- Step 5: Run differential for the season, i.e., total runs scored during the season minus total runs given up during the season (the higher the run differential, the higher the seed)
- Step 6: Total runs scored during the season (the more runs scored, the higher the seed)
- Step 7: Total runs given up during the season (the fewer runs given up, the higher the seed)
- Step 8: A coin flip

Note: As during the regular season, Host Teams for each game are expected to provide two experienced umpires, one tower person, and possible subs needed for the game they are hosting. There are four umpires for the final Championship Game. Good luck to all in the playoffs...and have fun!
